

Notification of Public Meetings on Ways to Increase Affordable Housing Production

The City of San José faces important challenges in providing affordable housing for all socioeconomic segments of its population, given the highly competitive housing market and limited public dollars for financing affordable housing production. As a result, the City is exploring ways to increase production of affordable housing. One option would be to make the City's current inclusionary housing requirement in redevelopment project areas apply Citywide. The Department of Housing will hold a series of public meetings to explore inclusionary housing and other potential means of increasing affordable housing production in the coming weeks.

What is inclusionary housing? Inclusionary housing requires all new residential developments to have a certain number of homes and apartments available to lower and moderate income individuals and families.

1. Stakeholder Meetings - Participation in these meetings will generally be limited to the invited representatives of stakeholder groups. At the end of each meeting, there will be allotted time for public comment.
